3:30 PM ..............................................Conclusion and Plans for Follow-Up
Dr. Marquita Grenot-Scheyer joined the faculty at California State University, Long Beach in 1988. Her teaching, research, scholarly activity and community efforts focus on the improvement of educational services and options for individuals with severe disabilities and their families. Prior to joining the faculty at CSULB, Dr. Grenot-Scheyer was a special day class teacher in the Los Angeles Unified School District. Dr. Grenot-Scheyer is a member of the advisory board for the National Institute for Urban School Improvement and has served on the editorial board for several special education journals. She is co-editor of the book, At the End of the Day: Lessons Learned in Inclusive Education (Paul H. Brooke, 2001), and has published numerous articles, books, and book chapters in the areas of severe disabilities and teacher preparation.

Dr. James S. Lanich began his career as an inner city middle school teacher for the Los Angeles Unified School District. From there, he joined the L.A. County Office of Education where he led the largest Research and Development Unit of any educational agency in the nation charged with bringing standards based reform to over 1,700 schools. In 1993, he received his Ph.D. in Curriculum and Instruction from USC. In 1998, he assumed leadership of Core Curriculum Services for the Los Angeles County Superintendent of Schools. Here, he developed and led the Academic Achievement Alliance charged with raising the reading and math test scores in the 100 lowest performing schools of Los Angeles County. From 2001 to 2005 he served as the first Director for the Board Prize for Urban Education, which awarded $1 million dollars in scholarships to high performing urban school districts in the nation. He also co-founded Just for the Kids-California and became President of California Business for Education Excellence (CBEE), representing California’s business leaders focused on raising student academic achievement in the state. In 2006, Dr. Lanich was appointed by U.S. Secretary of Education, Margaret Spellings to the National Assessment Governing Board, which oversees the National Assessment for Educational Progress (NAEP), our Nation’s Report Card.
